CONKLING FORSAKEN.

The New York State Convention

Strongly Anti-Conkling and Independent.

The Meeting Harmonious--Nominations Acceptable.

The Convention Discussed by the Press.

YESTERDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

NEW YORK, October 5.—The republican state convention assembled at 9 o'clock with a full attendance. Members of the press were excluded, but it was learned that the proceedings were harmonious. Chairman Platt conducted the proceedings with impartiality. General Sharpe spoke in favor of Frank Hiscock, of Syracuse, as temporary chairman of the convention, and Hiscock was agreed upon. The selection seemed to give general satisfaction, and even those who opposed his nomination gave in their adherence, and, when the decision was announced, declared they would abide by the result. A better feeling prevailed, and there is every reason to hope that bad feeling engendered by the failure of the conference committee to agree, is in a good part dissipated, and the disruption of the convention anticipated has been averted. It was past 10 o'clock when the committee's deliberations were ended. The members then hastened to the academy of music to be in attendance by 11 o'clock, when the convention is to be called to order.

The republican state convention was called to order at 11.15 a. m. by ex-Senator T. C. Platt. The Academy of Music was crowded. He made touching allusions to the death of the late President Garfield, and prayed God to comfort the widow and fatherless children, and asked that strength and wisdom be given the president, and that peace and harmony prevail. Then followed a call of delegates. On the call of Platt's name as a delegate there was immense cheering. The name of C. M. Depew on the other side was called a few minutes afterwards, and was received with tremendous cheers. A notice of contested seats was given, and the chairman announced that the papers be referred at the proper time to the committee on contested seats. On conclusion of the roll-call the secretary read the call for the convention.

TEMPORARY CHAIRMAN.

Ex-Speaker Sharpe, in a short speech, proposed Hon. Frank Hiscock as temporary chairman. His speech was coldly received. Mr. Hiscock, with considerable warmth, declined. Theodore M. Pomeroy, from Cayuga, then proposed that, as Hiscock's name had been proposed against his wishes, that Senator Warner Miller's name be mentioned as temporary chairman. On this, amid great cheering, the ayes and noes were ordered. The vote resulted as follows: Total vote, 488; Warner Miller received 298, and Hiscock 190; Miller's majority, 108. This announcement was received with long applause.

THE CONTESTS IN ONEIDA AND OSWEGO COUNTIES.

NEW YORK, October 5.—The opinion prevails among delegates generally that the contests in Oneida and Oswego counties will be brought before the committee on contested seats with earnestness on the part of the stalwart contestants, as if a majority of the convention was not adverse to their admission. The committee will be aided in its work by the adjudication that was had at the judiciary convention in Syracuse.

NEW YORK, October 5.—Secretary Johnson, of the republican state committee, was unable to say this afternoon which set of delegates from the contested districts of Oneida and Oswego counties would be placed on the roll. Doubtless it would be presented to the state committee at its meeting in the morning, and the decision then be made. There was some talk this afternoon that both sets of delegates from these counties would be allowed to go on the roll.

THE ANTI-STALWART DELEGATES.

NEW YORK, October 5. The anti-stalwart delegates and their friends held a conference at 8 o'clock this afternoon, in Senator Miller's room in the Fifth Avenue hotel. It was largely attended, and a free interchange of views respecting the course to be pursued by the convention was had.

CONVENTION CALLED TO ORDER.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The convention was dilatory in assembling. At 8.15 the delegates and onlookers joined in singing "Marching through Georgia" and other airs national and comic. Finally George Wm. Curtis' name was called and the shouting changed to cheering, but this in turn gave place to more songs, local politicians coming out strong in the popular airs. At 8.15 the convention was called to order.

THE BUSINESS COMMENCED.

Chair—"The first business is the report of the committee upon contested seats. Is that committee ready?"

"Yes."

The report was then read and by it Albert Doggett, of Brooklyn, who has opposed Conkling people was given a seat in the convention. Others of his side from Brooklyn were also awarded seats.

The passage in the report upon the Oneida districts is as follows: In the first district of Oneida your committee report by a vote of 12 to 4 that the sitting delegates are not entitled to their seats, but the following persons are: Samuel S. Lowrie, Samuel R. Campbell, S. A. Millard, N. K. Pierce. In the second district of Oneida your committee report that the sitting members announce that they will make no further claim to their seats, and that the following named persons are entitled to seats: Samuel Campbell, M. H. Cody, Wm. J. Clark, Samuel H. Fox. In the third district of Oneida your committee report by a vote of 11 to 2 that the sitting members are entitled to their seats. By a vote of 10 to 1 the delegation, headed by ex-Senator Slade and known to be anti-Conkling, were awarded seats from Oswego. The sitting delegates from the fifteenth district, New York city, are both declared not entitled to their seats. These contestants are the leaders of the anti-machine. The central committee's report closed as follows: Your committee vote 10 to 1 to recommend this convention to the state committee with power subject of reconsideration and reorganization in all or any of the districts in the city of New York. The motion being made that a reported decision of the question, inasmuch as it relates to the resolution and to the recommendation, at the close "Bliss' request prevailed, and the chair said: "The question is now upon the final resolution consideration." Bliss then moved the resolution be postponed until after the state ticket had been nominated. Carried.

CHAUNCEY M. DEPEW PRESIDENT.

The chairman announced the next business in order was the report of the committee on permanent organization. Mr. Husted said: Mr. Chairman, your committee on permanent organization have unanimously agreed to name for president of this convention Chauncey M. Depew. [Tremendous applause]. The report was adopted. Mr. Depew then took the chair amid applause.

THE RESOLUTIONS.

Resolutions expressing sorrow at the death of Garfield, sympathy with his family, and confidence in the ability and integrity of Arthur and pledging support to his administration were adopted.

The committee on resolutions presented the following and they were adopted: "The republicans of New York declare as follows: We unite with our fellow citizens throughout the Union in deploring the incalculable calamity which has befallen the country in the death of the late president, James Abraham Garfield. Under the kindly influence of American institutions and by the force of a noble manhood he rose from the humblest walks of life to the highest station. By manliness and gentleness of nature, by public spirit and disciplined intelligence for public affairs, by strength of political organization blended with singular moderation of temper and urbanity of expression, and above all by that noble temper which alone composes angry states, reconciles parties and secures wise reform, he has singularly filled the great office to which he was elevated by the free choice of his fellow-citizens. At the opening of his administration he had every confidence of the country, by completing the refunding of the public debt, by exposing the vast system of public robbery, and by hastening the prosecution of the robbers by his frank declaration of the intention to ask aid of congress to restore the conduct of the public business to business principles and by his triumphant vindication of the constitutional authority of the executive office. Suddenly stricken by a mortal blow he lay face to face with death for eighty days with such sublime serenity of courage unequalled for the cheerful patience and gracious courtesy that every heart of Christendom beat with sympathy and admiration and brought every nation to our side as friends and brothers. His name shines among the world's heroes and it is written upon American hearts with the names of Washington and Lincoln. Cherishing the memory of his brave, simple, and manly character, inspired by his lofty aims and unsullied life, impressively warned by the circumstances of his assassination, we pledge ourselves anew to the great national objects to which the late president was devoted and which now are bequeathed to the party he so patriotically served and of whose name and fame he was justly proud.

We respectfully offer to the venerable mother, devoted wife and bereaved children of the late president the assurance of our deep and tender sympathy in a sorrow which only Divine power can console, but which has the alleviation that the spotless memory of the dead, the tearful gratitude of the country and the sincere grief of the world can afford.

A female suffrage resolution was offered by ex-Speaker Husted, but no action was taken.

THE NOMINATIONS.

Nominations were announced in order, and General Joseph B. Carr was unanimously renominated for secretary of state. Ira Davenport was nominated for state comptroller in the place of James Wadsworth who declined a renomination. Leslie W. Russell was nominated for attorney general in place of Hamilton Ward, the present incumbent. The vote stood: Russell, 258; Ward, 231.

James W. Husted was nominated for state treasurer. A resolution that the state committee order the reorganization of the party in New York and Kings county, met with strong opposition, and a motion to lay the resolution on the table was passed. Ayes, 302; nays, 199. New York and Brooklyn opposed the reorganization, and claim that their vote at the presidential election made it unnecessary. The new state committee then announced the customary vote of thanks, which was passed, and the convention adjourned at 1 o'clock.

Silas Seymour was nominated for state engineer, and Francis M. Finch for judge of the court of appeals. Both were by acclamation. Carrol D. C. Smith, of the committee on resolutions, then offered the following and it was agreed to:

Resolved, that we accept the conciliatory spirit that has characterized the proceedings of this body as a harbinger of enduring harmony and permanent success.

THE TICKET NOMINATED

is made up of men of proved integrity, and true patriotism, they are deserving of popular confidence and will discharge the duties of the several offices for which they have been nominated with conscious fidelity to the people and to the state.

PRESS COMMENTS.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The Evening Commercial (Conkling's organ) is intensely bitter over the result of yesterday's convention, which it denounces as a fraud, declaring it a deception and says that catchpenny appeals and promises that have no substance make up the record of the day's work. It strongly intimates that Conkling's support cannot be had for the ticket, for how can he with self-respect offer his services to the men who by fraud, treachery, deception and the use of despicable arts have secured control of the party and call themselves republican leaders?

The Tribune says that for the first time in many years republican opinion of New York has found expression in the state convention. One hundred and eight was the majority before which the Conkling machine went to the wall yesterday. If the voice of the republicans of the cities had not been stifled by the district association and had found as free expression as did that of their brethren in the rural districts, the convention would have been almost unanimous. The ticket nominated is made up of good material throughout, is well distributed geographically and is representative of both wings of the party.

The Times says: The convention yesterday may be called a reform convention. It leaves the party in a healthy and vigorous condition. There is no doubt that the action of the convention in breaking with the custom which has given the state committee so large an influence over the formal action of the party, will be approved. The candid tone which pervades the convention with reference to the south is an indication that it will require even more than the usual democratic facility to make a purely sectional issue again prominent.

The Herald says: The republican convention turned out to be as the Herald predicted, a very modern conservative tame affair. The opponents of Conkling carried the organization but seem to have used their power with dignity and reserve. Whether the harmony will last is another question but the anesthetic influence of Arthur as president will not be lost upon the republican convention.

The World says: The victory of the half-breeds in the convention simply bends the stalwarts to beat the republican ticket in the election. The nominations make a neat and complete step ladder and transom ticket. It is tolerably clear that the delegates who nominated such a ticket did it with confidence and well grounded expectation of its defeat.

MRS. GARFIELD

Corrects Some Misstatements Reported from the Sick Room.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The Sun's Washington special says: It is asserted Mrs. Garfield has requested Dr. Boynton to withhold the statement which he had prepared relative to the autopsy and the general treatment of the president's case, as she is satisfied the president's wound was mortal and did not desire to have the controversy further prolonged. Many of the sayings attributed to Garfield were either misunderstood or were not correctly reported from the sick room; notably the saying: "Is it worth time to continue the struggle longer?" is said to have originated in a statement made in the president's wanderings when he was evidently going over his work as a member of the electoral commission; "Is it worth while to go into this Florida business further?" On arriving at Long Branch he fell in a stupor from which it was difficult to arouse him and from which he did not rally until the next day. When he did arouse he was surprised to find where he was, requested to be taken away and said that he had asked to be taken to Mentor and wished to go there. He asked for Blaine and wondered he didn't come; but did not make a general request that all the members of the cabinet visit him. Toward the latter part of the time the physicians and attendants were compelled to satisfy his requests and commands with evasions.

Arizona Items.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 6.—A Tucson dispatch says: It has been reported that a change of commanders in Arizona has taken place, Col. MacKenzie succeeding Wilcox and that MacKenzie has put Major Biddle under arrest on representation of Agent Tiffany that the major's action had caused the late outbreak of the Chiricahuhuas.

A Star special from Wilcox says: Major Biddle has not been placed under arrest either by MacKenzie or any one else. General Wilcox is commanding the department of Arizona and not MacKenzie. Mackenzie, who is Wilcox's junior, was sent to the department with part of the 4th cavalry, his own regiment. Being the senior officer except Wilcox in this department, it was requested that he should be placed in personal command of the operations in field under General Wilcox, who retains the command of a department, which of course includes MacKenzie and his operations.

A special from Benson says: Two men were found murdered this morning about three miles south of Benson, west of the Tombstone road. It is supposed they were killed by the Indians. Indications are that the light Tuesday evening in Dragoon had completely demoralized the hostiles and caused them to break up in small bands, which can be of little danger and can soon be annihilated.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 6.—A dispatch from Wilcox, Arizona, says: The following has been obtained from one of Bernard's command who came in this morning escorting the wounded. He says that from the time the command left the train at Dragoon station, the troops went on a gallop until Indians were discovered in the foot hills. They drove them towards the plains when the Indians commenced throwing away their property. On the trail they found provisions, blankets, moccasins and money in buckskin bags. Two dead Indians were found.

One of the scouts took from the body of one of the Indians a discharge as a scout from a New Mexican company. Two cavalrymen were wounded and are now here. One was shot through the leg and the other through the wrist.

Reports received this morning from Dragoon Summit says that a wounded Indian scout came here to the section house, saying the troops and the Indians were fighting again last night back of the first range of mountains, supposed to be Cochise's stronghold.

A CABINET RUMOR.

Conkling Said to be Provided For.

PHILADELPHIA, October 5.—The Ledger's New York special states positively that the president offered Conkling the position of secretary of the treasury and he has accepted, with the understanding that he will enter upon the duties of the office when the regular session commences. When the inside history of Jones' recent hasty errand to Utica and the president's subsequent visit to New York comes to be written, it will be found that it was to perfect this arrangement by which Conkling has been kept away from the convention.

Guiteau's Indictment.

WASHINGTON, October 6.—The indictment in the case of Guiteau has been completed and is now in the hands of the printer. It will not be given to the grand jury to-day, and owing to the absence of Scoville, counsel for the defense, in New York, it is possible that the body will not act upon it until next week.

Earthquake in New Hampshire.

BRISTOL, N. H., October 6.—A shock of earthquake was felt here a little after midnight. It passed from the west to the east, and made a noise like the rumbling of a heavy train of cars and the shock of buildings was perceptible.

Fire in Pulaski.

OSWEGO, October 6.—A fire broke out this morning in the business part of the village of Pulaski and several buildings on both sides of Main street were burned. A steamer has been sent there from this city.

GUILTY CONSCIENCE.

The Jewelry Stolen from Mrs. Hopkins Last July Returned to Her Through the Postoffice.

Last July the GAZETTE published an account of the robbery of Mrs. Hopkins by masked men during the absence of her husband at Manitou. It was looked upon at the time as being the most daring robbery ever perpetrated in Colorado Springs. The officers although they worked persistently on the case for some time, were unable to arrive at any clue which would in the least aid to the identity of the thieves. Yesterday morning the mailing clerk at the postoffice, while engaged in taking the mail from the drop box in the office came across a small package done up in brown paper on which there was no address.

Upon being opened the package was found to contain a watch, parts of a neck chain and a finger ring. Deputy Sheriff Dana, who happened to be in the office at that time, was shown the jewelry and he at once identified it as that stolen from Mrs. Hopkins. As further means of identification the name of Lizzie Fish was engraved on the inner side of the watch case. This was known to be Mrs. Hopkins' maiden name. The jewelry was at once taken to Mrs. Hopkins and she claimed it as her property, although it was found to be in somewhat of a dilapidated condition to what it was when taken from her. The cases of the watch were indented and tarnished, showing plainly that it had seen some rough handling. The chain when taken was a long neck chain with gold clasp and breastpin attached. All that remained when returned was the brooch and about six inches of the chain. Originally the setting of the ring contained a diamond surmounted by rubies. The diamond setting had been removed, but the rubies remained. It is very apparent that the thieves were afraid to dispose of any of the jewelry returned, as it could be very easily identified.

REAL ESTATE.

Transfer of Property for the Past Seven Weeks Amounts to $193,126.

No Such Figures Ever Before Reached in the History of Colorado Springs.

The sales of real estate in the county of El Paso for the last seven weeks as taken from the county records by M. L. Decoursey, real estate agent, aggregate $193,126, of which Colorado Springs alone stands credited with $159,677. In the history of the county or city no such figures have ever before been reached in a similar period of time. Of the purchases made very few, comparatively, have been for speculative purposes. Generally they have been made for investment as income bearers or for building purposes. Houses for rent are scarce, and our capitalists are making ready to supply the long-felt want. Prices of city property have advanced considerably during the last month, but the advance seems to be warranted by the steady increase of our population, and the consequent increased demand for places to live in or build upon. In the next six months well located property will probably go much higher than it is to-day.

In the same period of seven weeks, government patents for 12,757 acres of land have also been filed for record with our county clerk.

Following is the summary of recorded sales for the time named:

Sales of Colorado Springs property	$159,677
" " Manitou property	6,825
" " Colorado City property	1,162
" " Monument property	65
" " Fountain property	65
" " Country property	25,332
Total	$193,126

LITERARY AND MUSICAL.

The Entertainment to be Given at the Opera House To-morrow Night.

To-morrow evening the Young People's Society of Grace Episcopal church give a musical and literary entertainment in the Opera House for the benefit of the rectory fund. The best amateur talent in the city will take part in the entertainment, and it promises to be one of the most enjoyable events of the season.

Miss Shellabarger, whose name occupies such a prominent place upon the programme, comes with numerous letters of commendation from such influential persons as General Oglesby, late United States senator from Illinois, General Jesse Moore, of Illinois, Jennie F. Willing, of Chicago, and others, all of which speak in highest praise of her abilities as an elocutionist. While not wishing to be considered a professional, she has yet appeared before critical audiences, filling Wesleyan and Union halls in Boston, earning and receiving their hearty approbation. These successes were subsequently repeated in Chicago and other parts of Illinois. We are assured our people will accord a hearty reception to Miss Shellabarger, and hope the Opera House will be crowded upon the occasion of her debut in Colorado Springs.

We are desired to state that a grand piano has been secured for the occasion, which will add greatly to the effectiveness of the musical selections.

A last opportunity to hear Prof. Murray is afforded, as he leaves for California on Monday next.

Below we give the programme as arranged for the evening:

COLORADO MINES.

Numerous Notes Condensed from Our Exchanges.

OURAY.

The season of 1881 has been one of unusual activity in the mining business in this section. A number of mines have been worked with full force, among which are the Virginius, Bessie Bascom, Idlewild, Allied Group, Mineral Farm, Silver Point, James V. Dexter, Smuggler, Mendota, Alta, Blue Grass, Monongahela, Silver Link, Climax, Cimarron, Pandora, Oriental, Gold King, and a number of other lode claims, besides a number of placers, on the Miguel and its tributaries.

A number of large sales have been made, some of the most important being the Trout and Fisherman, Yankee Boy group, Ruby Trust, Vulcan, Humboldt and Union. All of those last named are now being worked.

Preparations are being made to continue work all winter on nearly all the mines I have mentioned.

A rich strike was made lately in the Yellow Rose lode, of the Allied group, in the shape of a large body of ore showing silver glance and native silver across the entire vein. The Allied company have expended a large amount of money in development work, and their success is well deserved. The property of this company is situated in Imogene basin, Mount Sneffel's district, and consists of the Yellow Rose, Narina, Gertrude, Talisman, Emily, Crusader and Hidden Treasure.

In this basin are also found the Richmond and Hoosier Girl, owned by County Treasurer Stoddard, and the Hancock, a promising prospect, owned by Butler & Jackson.

ASHCROFT.

The Yellow Boy group, of Ashcroft, is attracting considerable attention. This group was located two days prior to Governor Tabor's Tam O'Shanter group which surrounds the Yellow Boy lead.

Mr. Martin Sullivan, the well-known mining man of Leadville, returned from Ashcroft yesterday, where he has been for several days examining property in that flourishing camp for Leadville capitalists. Mr. Sullivan reports very favorably on that district.

Mr. Thomas Duffy, superintendent of the Iconclast group of mines, Ashcroft, is also in Leadville as delegate to the district convention. Mr. Duffy discovered some very rich leads on Pearl hill, Elk mountain range, during the season just closed, from which ore will be shipped early in the spring. Messrs. J. C. Langhorne, Tim Foley and Thomas Duffy are the owners of this valuable property.

The ore from the Alcyon mine on Pearl mountain has thus far proved to be the highest grade mineral discovered in the Ashcroft district, assays from which run from 1,832 to 5,722 ounces in silver to the ton.

Several large sales of Ashcroft properties will be announced soon.

Kinney & Co. are handling ore from the Pearl mine to their store.

President Simmons, of the Pearl Mining company, is expected to arrive daily.

The Philadelphia mining company have let contracts for developing several of their valuable prospects.

Twenty thousand dollars has been refused for the Paulina on Slate mountain.

The Paradox group is on the market. It consists of four fine claims, all showing mineral.

The Fourth of July lode, on Pearl mountain, is showing up remarkably well.

The Tom Collins, owned by Messrs. Galligan and Franklin, is undoubtedly another bonanza.

Several Chicago and Leadville capitalists are in camp.

Thomas & Kinney are pushing development on the Tibbetts group.

Hon. J. Y. Marshall and Captain Jacque have secured some fine property in the vicinity of Yellow Boy and Tam O'Shanter.

Work is progressing favorably in the 500 foot tunnel on the Montezuma.

Several tunnel sites have recently been staked on Mount Hope.

MINING BRIEFS.

The Gothic Miner says Dick Allen, of Leadville, has bought one of James Paugh's mines for $10,000.

A party of Chicago capitalists have purchased property in the San Juan region, on Tower mountain. A company has been formed under the name of the American and London Gold and Silver mining company.

The Ule mine, in the San Juan, turns out fifty tons a day of milling ore.

The Palmetto mill, at Hinsdale, delivered to a bank in that city, a week ago last Saturday, nine silver bricks, the product of one week's run. Their total value was $9,500.

The Polar Star, on Engineer mountain, is yielding some wonderfully rich ore.

The Milwaukee, on Mineral mountain, is opening up a wonderful deposit of galena in a shaft and open cut, at fifteen feet below the surface.

J. H. Haverly is developing his Golden Group mining property in the San Miguel country. A stamp mill has been erected. There are now about 225 tons of ore on the dumps.

A GOOD SHOWING.

Receipts of the Colorado Springs Postoffice for the Year Ending Sept. 30th.

Postmaster Price who has recently completed his annual report to the postoffice at Washington kindly furnishes us with the following figures of interest:

Receipts for year ending Sept. 30, 1881	$10,993.52
Number of money orders issued	5,756
Amount on " " " "	73,642.19
Number of " " paid	3420
Amount on " " " "	62,425.00
Number of letters registered	3571
Number of registered letters received	4276

There is probably not in the United States a city the size of Colorado Springs that can produce figures equal to these while there are many cities of a population of ten thousand that cannot surpass them.

According to the rules in force in the postoffice department an office with receipts of $10,000 per annum from the sale of stamps, newspaper wrappers, etc., is entitled to a carrier system. It will be seen that the receipts for this office fell but $6.48 short of giving us the delivery system. The amount of money sent by money orders exceeds by $16,117 the amount received by orders. The report as a whole is a very large one, and is a fair indication of the life and activity that prevails in our city.

The Garfield Hospital.

WASHINGTON, October 6.—A meeting of citizens was held to-night to promote the establishment of a national Garfield memorial hospital in the city of Washington. It was announced that a subscription list would be prepared and it was recommended that the whole country and foreign nations should be asked to place a memorial hospital on a broad national and international basis of common humanity. Queen Victoria will probably head the list of the subscriptions from Great Britain and it is thought that other European nations will gladly contribute to the fund.

An Address to the Voters of Colorado.

Under a provision of the constitution of the state of Colorado, the legal voters of the commonwealth will be called upon to select a site for the permanent location of the state capital at the general election in November next. It is also provided that should no place receive a majority of all the votes cast at said election, then the people shall at the next general election, a year later, decide between the two places receiving the highest number of votes at the first election.

The subject is one that clearly challenges the thoughtful consideration of every voter in Colorado. The convenience and safety of our people for all future time depends, perhaps, very much more upon the exercise of a wise judgment in the settlement of the question under consideration than most voters may upon first thought conceive.

What requisites or qualifications should a town possess to justify its selection as a site for the state capital? It should be located as near as possible in the center of the state; it should be accessible to the people of all sections of the state; it should be removed from the corrupting and distracting influences of large cities; it should be healthful, well-located and attractive, a fit representative of our beautiful state, and it should be able to furnish accommodations for not only such public officials as are necessarily compelled to live at the state capital, but for the members of the legislature, and all who are occasionally called to visit the capital on business.

Colorado Springs possesses these requisites in an eminent degree. Located close to the base of the mountains, at the foot of Pike's Peak, only ten miles south of the center of the state from north to south, and thirty miles from its geographical center, it certainly satisfies the almost universal demand that the capital of the state should be near its center.

No town in the state is so accessible to the people of all sections. Its situation on the main line of the great commercial link that unites the railroad system of the north to that of the south, and on projected lines of railroad, in process of construction, fast approaching the city on the east and west, enables it to fully comply with this important condition.

It is almost unnecessary to speak of its healthfulness and the beauty of its situation. It is generally acknowledged to be the most healthful spot in a state noted for the salubrity of its climate. Famous as the "Garden of the Gods," Pueblo, Leadville and other towns, come hither to enjoy the prospects and to escape the cold of winter and the heat of summer, the extremes of which are seldom felt here.

Colorado Springs is essentially a city of homes. It neither aspires nor expects to become a great commercial or manufacturing center like Denver in the north, or Pueblo in the south, and for this reason seems peculiarly fitted for the capital of the state. The people of the nation, and the several states, with very few exceptions, have carefully avoided locating their capitals in large and busy centers, the corrupting influences of which would certainly exercise a baneful effect upon legislation. So generally has this custom prevailed that it now has the force of established precedent. New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis have frequently tried to become the seats of government of their respective states, but their aspirations have invariably been defeated by a wise and considerate people. The thoughtful consideration of every voter in Colorado is called to this important point.

The Colorado Springs company has set apart a tract of ground ten acres in extent, on the beautiful plateau in front of the very center of the town, which will be donated to the state should the capital be located here. No more beautiful nor suitable grounds for a capitol building can be found in the state.

Adjoining the grounds donated to the state for capitol purposes there is now being erected one of the largest and most elegant hotels in the state, which with the other hotels and many large boarding houses in the city, will furnish the best and most ample accommodations for all who may have occasion to live in, or visit, the state capital.

To the other advantages above enumerated may be added, freedom from mud in winter and dust in summer, magnificent streets, parks and shade trees; good gas; an ample supply of the purest water; excellent educational institutions, and proximity to the celebrated mineral springs at Manitou.

Owing to its central location, the selection of Colorado Springs, should, and doubtless will, be a powerful agency in abolishing the sectional feeling that has always existed between the northern and southern portions of the state, and which has so frequently threatened to destroy the homogeneity of interests and fraternal feelings that should characterize the people of the great commonwealth of Colorado.

In conclusion, we respectfully urge upon our fellow-voters to refrain from throwing away their votes upon localities that have no chance of success. No mere temporary local interest should be considered at this time, for the question now submitted to the calm judgment of the people is one of more vital importance to the state at large—than to any particular city or locality.

Wonders will never cease. A New York republican convention has spoken well of civil service reform.

The Denver papers are making the right kind of a canvas for the capital. They have succeeded thus far in antagonizing every district in Colorado.

The New York state convention will strengthen Mr. Arthur in being just to all sections of the republican party and carrying on the reforms Mr. Garfield began.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR'S POLICY.

Murat Halstead had an interview with President Arthur on Saturday, the result of which he publishes in an editorial over his own signature. His testimony is of particular value as his dislike of Grant and Conkling has been strong and unceasing. He says:

President Arthur is not looking well. He has the appearance of a man who has passed through great anxieties and mental suffering. There is a gentleness about him that the country does not yet give him credit for. His last parting with President Garfield, during the heat of the New York warfare, was not only cordial but affectionate. He has been greatly relieved by the use of his name by the assassin Guiteau, and by the story of conferences at his house while Garfield was very low. The truth is, at the conferences was that a few of Arthur's friends, finding him despondent, thought it wise to call upon him with the view of cheering him up by lively conversation. This fact one of them mentioned.

After the death of Garfield, Arthur was hurried away to Washington, and left his personal affairs in confusion. He timed his trip to New York that it might be coincident with the vacation of the cabinet, while he could avoid the state convention.

He expressed, in the course of the conversation I had the honor to have with him on Saturday, his solicitude about the Ohio election. He referred to the importance that the October election here usually had, and said that, under the circumstances of the country, it was especially so now. I told him it would, in my judgment, do good if he would allow me to state on his authority that he took that degree of interest in the contest in this state.

He replied that there was no objection to publishing what he said; on the contrary, it would give him great pleasure to have his words repeated to the people of Ohio if the friends of the republican cause believed they would have the tendency to remove any doubts or uncertainties. Senator Jones, of Nevada, whom I saw after seeing the president, expressed his gratification that the president has made the expression of opinion about the Ohio election of which I informed him, and gave his own hearty concurrence to him; adding that a still more positive and formal utterance might be had if thought desirable.

President Arthur has no word of unkindness for any one. He enters upon the discharge of his great and trying responsibilities with "malice toward none and charity for all."

Speaking of cabinet changes he says there is nothing definite about them. He thinks Blaine will remain until December, when he will take the English mission, and that Andrew D. White or ex-Senator Frelinghuysen are likely to be his successor. Attorney General MacVeagh will not remain in the cabinet unless earnestly requested by the president to do so, because he thinks the president should have the greatest freedom in selecting his advisers. If he retires Mr. B. H. Brewster of Philadelphia, who is retained in the Star route cases, is likely to succeed him. Mr. Lincoln is likely to remain. Mr. Windom wishes to retire. Mr. Kirkwood is likely to retire by the beginning of the next session of congress. Mr. Hunt is an old personal friend of Arthur's and is likely to remain. James will remain until next June when he will retire to take a fine business position. To sum up Blaine, Kirkwood and Windom are sure to retire on the meeting of congress. Lincoln, Hunt, James and possibly MacVeagh will remain longer. These speculations have more than ordinary interest because of their source, and as Mr. Halstead has been conversing with the friends of Mr. Arthur, they are likely to be as near the truth as any.

The Denver News should be successful at least in drawing out some kind of a letter from Judge Belford.

George William Curtis again takes his place in the republican state conventions in New York and is cheered. This is quite a change since 1877 when Conkling made his violent attack on him.

The convention yesterday showed that Mr. Arthur's change in affairs since he was removed from the New York custom house are not greater than those in Mr. Conkling's career for the same period.

The Denver News may be correct in saying that Judge Belford said Senator Hill said certain things about ex-Governor Routt. But this does not justify it in stating that Senator Hill did say those things. There ought always to be an authority for such statements.

According to Murat Halstead General Grant has been the violent adviser of Arthur. He insisted on the removal of Blaine. James and Robertson immediately on Arthur becoming president. This leads us to be thankful that the ticket last year was not Garfield and Grant.

Postmaster General James proposes to effect two reforms in his department which will be very popular. He will recommend the reduction of letter postage to two cents and money orders at half the present charges. This is the effect of the difference between management of this department on political and business principles.

New York yesterday had its first republican convention for years representing the sentiments of the masses of the party. The machine was a tangled wreck. Not the least important event was the report of the committee on credentials which was in favor of modifying the organization in New York city. This will be the final act in breaking the power of the machine. The machine is often useful in keeping up the organization of the party, but when it assumes to be the party it should be destroyed.

The Chieftain very properly brings up the Morey letter before those papers which maintained it was genuine when the fact was patent that it was not. The News and Democrat both maintained it was genuine until after election, though Barnum's dispatches on which their statements were based were known to be incorrect. Repentance may now make them sorrowful but it is a pity they could not have shown some respect to the living Garfield. It should be a lesson to those papers which are so unscrupulous in attacking personal character for partisan purposes.

Mr. Nelson W. Aldrich, who has just been elected to the senate from Rhode Island was born in Connecticut in 1841. He moved to Providence some years ago and engaged in the wholesale grocery business in which he was remarkably successful. In 1872 he began to take a part in local politics and filled several offices with credit. In 1879 he was elected to congress and was reelected last year. His short political career has shown him to be a man of great ability as an organizer. With all the leading party managers for Grant, he succeeded in carrying the convention for Blaine in May, 1880. He represents the young, active element in republican politics in Rhode Island, though not the independent republicans. He is not a man of much education but has good common sense and great decision of character and will make a useful senator.

It may be a matter of interest to the indicted Denver journalists to know that the "apple tree agent" has been to Cañon City, and visited, among the places of interest, the penitentiary. The buildings are quite comfortable, work and food plenty. The warden informs us that it is the healthiest prison in the world as shown by statistics. Beside the outdoor recreations there is a good library to amuse the boarders in long winter evenings. Taken all in all, it will make a very comfortable home. So cheer up.

Friendship After Love.

BRET HARTE.

After the fierce midsummer all-absorbing,
Has burned itself to ashes, and expires
In the intensity of its own fires—
There come the mellow, mild St. Martin's days,
Crowned with the calm of peace, but said with haze.

So after Love has left us all to tires
Of his own throes and torments and desires,
Comes large-eyed Friendship: with a restless gaze
He beckons us to follow; and across
Cool, verdant vales we wander free from care.
Is it a touch of frost lies in the air?
Why are we haunted with a sense of loss?
We do not wish the pain back, or the heat;
And yet, and yet—these days are incomplete.

THE SYMPATHY OF NATIONS.

The Close of Dr. Brooks' Sermon on Westminster Abbey, July 4, 1880.

From "The Candle of the Lord" and Other Sermons.

MY FRIENDS:—May I ask you to linger while I say to you a few words more, which shall not be unsuited to what I have been saying, and which shall, for just a moment, recall to you the sacredness which this day—the Fourth of July, the anniversary of American independence, has in the hearts of us Americans. If I dare generously permitted as I am to stand this evening in the venerable abbey, so full of our history as well as yours—to claim that our festival shall have some sacredness for you as well as us, my claim rests on the simple truth that to all true men the birthday of a nation must always be a sacred thing. For in our modern thought the nation is the making-place of men. Not by the traditions of its history, nor by the splendor of its corporate achievements, nor by the abstract excellencies of its constitution, but by its fitness to make men, to beget and educate human character, to contribute to the complete humanity, the "perfect man" that is to be—by this alone each nation must be judged to-day. The nations are the golden candlesticks which hold aloft the candle of the Lord. No candle-stick can be so rich or venerable that men shall honor it if it holds no candle. "Show us your man," land cries to land.

In such days any nation, out of the midst of which God has led another nation as he led ours out of the midst of yours, must surely watch with anxiety and prayer the peculiar development of our common humanity of which that new nation is made the home, the special burning of the human candle in that new candlestick, and if she sees a hope and promise that God means to build in that new land some strong and free and characteristic manhood which shall help the world to its completeness, the mother land will surely lose the thought and memory of whatever anguish accompanied the birth, for gratitude over the gain which humanity has made, "for joy that a man is born into the world."

It is not for me to glorify to-night the country which I love with all my heart and soul. I may not ask your praise for anything admirable which the United States has been or done. But on my country's birthday I may do something far more solemn and more worthy of the hour. I may ask you for your prayer in her behalf. That, on the manifold and wondrous chance which God is giving her on her freedom (for she is free, since the old stain of slavery was washed out in blood); on her unconstrained religious life; on her passion for education, and her eager search for truth; on her jealous care for the poor man's rights and opportunities; on the countless quiet homes where the future generations of her men are growing; on her manufactures and her commerce; on her wide gates open to the east, and to the west; on her strange meetings of the races out of which a new race is slowly being born; on her vast enterprise and her illimitable hopefulness, on all these materials and machineries of manhood, on all that the life of my country must mean for humanity, I may ask you to pray that the blessing of God the Father of man, and Christ the Son of man, may rest forever.

Because you are Englishmen and I am an American; also because here, under this high and hospitable roof of God, we are all more than Englishmen and more than Americans; because we are all men, children of God, waiting for the full coming of our Father's kingdom, I ask you for that prayer.

Government of Moslem Women.

A code of rules for the "dress and deportment" of Moslem ladies in public places has lately been drawn up by the ministry of police at Constantinople, in concert with the council of state, by order of the sultan, and at the request of the Sheikh-ul-Islam. By these regulations women are forbidden to wear only the "tcharshaf" (a narrow veil) in public places and frequented streets; but they may use this veil in unfrequented streets and when paying visits. The police have strict orders to report any infringement of this regulation to the minister of police, with the name of the offender. Mussulman ladies are also forbidden to drive or walk round the places of Bayazid, Shahzadé-Bashi and Akserai. Nor will they in future be allowed to promenade in the Great Bazaar, or to sit down in shops. If these rules are infringed the drivers of the carriages they have used and the ladies themselves will be proceeded against under Article 254 of the penal code. The police have also received orders on no account to permit ladies to gather in groups in public places; and ladies thus transgressing will be directed to move on. When a police officer finds it necessary to interfere in this way he is to address the oldest lady in the group, or the servants in attendance, at his discretion. The regulations further prescribe the demeanor to be observed by men toward ladies in public. Any man who speaks to a woman, or makes signs to her, will be punished under Article 202 of the criminal code.

What Congress Did for Mrs. Lincoln.

Washington Star.

It is a matter of discussion at this time what congress will do for Mrs. Garfield. In this connection the acts passed in relation to Mrs. Mary Lincoln are of interest. There were three acts of the kind passed by congress. The first act, passed when congress came together after the assassination of President Lincoln, was as follows: "That the secretary of the treasury pay, out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated, to Mrs. Mary Lincoln, widow of Abraham Lincoln, late president of the United States, or, in the event of her death before payment, to the lawful heirs, the sum of $25,000; provided always that any sum of money which shall have been paid to the personal representatives of the said Abraham Lincoln since his death on account of his salary as president of the United States for the current year shall be deducted from the said sum of $25000." The amount thus granted to Mrs. Lincoln was the salary of the president for one year. Now that salary is $50,000. In February, 1866, congress passed the following act: "That all letters and packets carried by post to and from Mary Lincoln, widow of the late Abraham Lincoln, be carried free of postage during her natural life." In 1870 the following act was passed: "That the secretary of the interior be, and is hereby authorized, to place the name of Mary Lincoln, widow of Abraham Lincoln, deceased, late president of the United States, on the pension roll, and allow and pay her a pension at the rate of $3,000 per annum from and after the passage of this act."

President Arthur.

From A. A. Hayes' New York Letter.

As to the successor of General Garfield we ought to be humbly thankful that we have so admirable a man. I know of but one solitary thing which can be said by any man against General Arthur, and that is that he has been abused on political grounds. But in the name of common sense, was a man ever more brutally abused, than the one whose death we mourn? Our new president is a man whom we New Yorkers delight to honor. He has made a record for character, ability, superb executive powers, absolute integrity, courage, temper, tact and good nature. Moreover, he is a gentleman, and what a good many of our presidents have not been, a citizen of the world. He is an extremely handsome man, fifty-one years of age. He is a widower, his lamented wife having been a daughter of the gallant Captain W. L. Herndon, U. S. N., who went down at his post on the Central America. He has a son and a little daughter. He has been an eminent lawyer, and when the war broke out he was on the staff of Governor Morgan. It is probable that few people now know the immense labor which he performed in equipping and sending forward the splendid quota of volunteers furnished by the state. No miserable trumped-up slanders should be allowed place for a moment in the mind of any sensible man, when it is known that the merchants of this city, with a remarkable and spontaneous unanimity, demanded his appointment and opposed his removal. Abuse of such men, on grounds which are rarely definite, and always and wholly partisan, have had their legitimate sequence in the pistol shot of Guiteau, and may possibly be mitigated while the resemblance of that deed shall last.

All in Vain.

Philadelphia Times.

"Crete," said the president to his brave little wife about 11 one Thursday morning, as the ringing strokes from the belfry of the Episcopal church, almost from the cottage, reached his ears, "what are they ringing that bell for?"

"That?" said Mrs. Garfield, who had been waiting for the surprise; "that's the church where we were when you first came down. They're all going there to pray for you to get well," and falling on her knees she said: "And I'm going to pray too, James, that it may be soon, for I know that the other prayer has been heard."

From where he lay Garfield could see the carriages drawing up and group after group go in. He could even hear the subdued refrain of "Jesus, lover of my soul," as it was borne by on its heavenward way. Thrilled with emotion, a tear trickled down the president's face. After a while a sweet, woman's voice arose singing from one of Sir Michael Costa's noblest oratorios. "Turn thou unto me and have mercy upon me," sang the voice, "for I am desolate; I am desolate and afflicted; the troubles of my heart are enlarged. O, bring thou me out of my distresses, out of my distresses, my God."

The people in the church sat almost spellbound under the voice. Mrs. George W. Childs, who sang the recitative, was affected deeply and made it seem to all, what it must have been to her, a prayer in music. Rev. Dr. Morton, of Philadelphia, was the officiating clergyman, and prayed long and fervently that the chief magistrate of the nation might be preserved to the people and made more useful than before. It was a solemn, deeply felt and awe-inspiring service, but still made bright by the evidences of religious hope.

Russia and China.

New York Times.

The plan of Russia to settle forty thousand families in the country, to the south of Vladivostok, her most southern port on the Pacific coast, becomes all the more significant when viewed in connection with the treaty she has just ratified, after three years of weary negotiations, with her persistent Chinese neighbors. By this treaty she has voluntarily given up to its former owners the fertile province of Kuldja, or the ancient Ili, lying directly north of the Kashgar valley, and one of the few possessions she had in Asia that yielded any revenue. China thus acquires her ancient western boundary, and her empire is restored to its pristine limits. It was eighteen years ago, at the time of the Mohammedan uprising, that Kuldja was released from Chinese hands, and for ten years past it has been under the sway of the Russian czar. China, by the treaty, pays some pecuniary indemnity, but it is little more than a fair return for heavy expenses Russia was put to last year, and the payment of it is extended over a period of two years, while Chinese occupation of the province begins at an early date. Other concessions made to Russia relate entirely to trade. They include the right to enter China by another passage through the great wall, there having been for Russian merchants heretofore only one passageway in 200 years. It does not appear, however, that Russian trade will derive any important increase from this second gate, which lies at the western end of the great wall. To the north of it there is a vast steppe, without towns and almost without roads, while to the south extend the barren table lands of Thibet, neither of which countries would be of any startling services in the development of trade. Even the tribes that now live there have a grim struggle for existence, and what Russia can find of satisfaction in this concession for the surrender of Kuldja it is impossible to see. Elsewhere, if anywhere, her satisfaction evidently must be found. She will, at least, it is believed, obtain in China a neutral Asiatic power, for China, having now acquired her ancient boundary, and always unambitious to extend her territory beyond that, might easily remain indifferent to Russian conquest elsewhere in Asia. It is perfectly well known that for more than a generation Russia has desired on the Pacific coast a harbor that would remain open all the year. She did not get this in Nicolatysk, at the mouth of the Amoor, nor has she realized in Vladivostok, further south on the sea of Japan, what she expected. On the Corean coast, opposite Vladivostok there is a port known as Lazareff, which would, reports affirm, all that Russia could desire. Her sending forty thousand families to the population of a small city—into that neighborhood—makes it look extremely suspicious whether the Asiatic eye of Russia is not now fixed upon Corea, or enough of it to secure the first class Asiatic port she so much desires.

The New Horse Disease Which Threatens the Species

Denver News

Horse influenza, otherwise known as pink eye, continues to prevail among the horses of the east without as yet showing any perceptible signs of abatement The car companies, especially in St Louis have a good many sick horses in their stables although thus far they have managed so as not to allow the presence of the epidemic to interfere with the regular operation of their lines The stormy weather, besides causing more or less new cases, has very materially retarded the recovery of the animals that were convalescing The livery men are experiencing a deal of trouble, and at present are not working more than one-fourth of their stock In the event of an unusual demand for conveyances citizens would find difficulty in procuring the requisite number of horses By careful nursing and with a probable modification in the weather, it is believed that further spread of the disease will be checked, although some fears are entertained that the epidemic will come further west The epizootic it will be remembered prod us a long call, and horsemen generally seem to think that they may also heir from pink eye
